

LAST FROM MARY HUR

War Department Receives Report of Affairs in Philippine Islands.

NATIVES' FRIENDSHIP IS DEVELOPING

Present Trend of Events Endears Americans to Their Hearts.

EMPHASIZES THE AGUINALDO CAPTURE

Says it Had Tendency to Disillusionize Ignorant.

OTHERS CONTRIBUTE THEIR STATISTICS

Staff Officers Commanding Various Departments Help Make the Resume an Accurate and Complete One.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—The annual report of Major General MacArthur, dated July 1, 1901, the day he relinquished command of the Philippines, has been received at the War Department. The period covered by the report is from October 1, 1900, when the last report from General MacArthur was dated. He says: "With the disbandment of the insurgents' field armies the Filipinos organized desperate resistance by banding the people together in support of the guerrillas. This was carried out by means of secret committees which collected contributions, inflicted punishments and carried on a considerable opposition to the Americans." General MacArthur says he hopes the policy adopted will, in time, conciliate the natives and make them friendly to the United States. The education of the people in time past made them suspicious of any governmental benevolence and they evidently looked upon the lenient attitude of the United States as indicating weakness. General MacArthur says the proclamation issued on December 29 finally declared the intention of the United States to hold the islands and have the laws obeyed had a good effect and the secret resistance was much abated. General MacArthur gives the following statistics from May 5, 1900, to June 30, 1901 during which time there were 1,062 contacts between American troops and insurgents, which show the casualties on both sides:

Americans—Killed, 245; wounded, 450; captured, 118; missing, 20.

Insurgents—Killed, 1,062; wounded, 1,199; captured, 6,572; surrendered, 23,995.

During the same period the following material was captured or surrendered from the insurgents: Rifles, 15,693; ammunition, 256,345 rounds; revolvers, 588; bolos, 3,516; cannon, 122; cannon ammunition, 19,270 rounds.

Significance of Conditions.

At the date of the present report there was no embodied rebel force in Luzon above the Pasig river. In the department of Visayas all was pacific excepting the island of Samar and in the department of Mindanao and Jolo all the rebels had submitted and the island of Mindanao was in the hands of the United States.

In this connection General MacArthur says:

It is respectfully submitted that the very gratifying conditions herein briefly recapitulated have not been brought entirely by the hand of Providence. Neither must the attitude of the people who have declared for peace be ascribed entirely to the conservative forces as constant factors, the friendly operation of which can be relied upon irrespective of the future of the islands.

General MacArthur says the capture of Aguinaldo may be regarded as the most important single event of the year. Speaking particularly of Aguinaldo, he says that the important immediate results and the remote consequences make it the important event which he characterizes it. He calls it a "unique, isolated military transaction."

The capture dispelled the growing tendency to idealize Aguinaldo as a hero and to surround him with mythical legends of invincibility, which thousands of natives believed to be true and which ultimately would insure success for the rebellion. Aguinaldo was the incarnation of the insurrection. His death would mean the annihilation of the agent which surrounded him while his capture has dispelled a great deal of the fictitious value he had.

General MacArthur reviews the various supply departments of the army and speaks of them in the highest terms. He says: "The co-operation of the navy has been cordial, constant and effective. Many important transactions have been almost entirely dependent upon naval support and assistance."

Favors Crowder's Coinage Plan.

General MacArthur speaks of the great confusion regarding a money medium in the Philippines, precisely the characteristic of the eastern world, and favors the recommendations of Colonel E. H. Crowder, military secretary, for a coinage system to meet the conditions existing in the islands, which is summed up in the following:

1. The American gold standard to be established by the United States.

2. A table of equivalents to be declared by law between Philippine gold money and United States money in all its various forms, including banknotes, on the basis of 2 to 1, that is to say, one United States gold dollar is equivalent to two Philippine gold pesos, as herein prescribed.

3. A subsidiary Philippine coinage, embracing such subdivisions of the gold peso as most convenient, conforming as much as possible to the subsidiary coin of the United States and with an established rate of equivalents as in the case of gold, that is to say, one United States coin is equivalent to two Philippine coins of the same denomination.

4. The establishment of Philippine national banks, precisely the same in all respects as now authorized in the United States, including United States bonds as a basis of circulation.

5. All currency issued under the foregoing systems to have full legal tender status in the Philippine Islands for all public duties and private debts; and the equivalent United States currency and subsidiary coinage, as authorized in the foregoing sections 2 and 3, to have legal tender status in the Philippines to the same extent.

(Continued on Second Page.)

FUNERAL

Empress Dowager, which's Expressed Wishes Are Out at Friedrichshagen.

CRONBERG, Aug. 8.—The funeral service at Friedrichshagen late this afternoon was simple, but impressive. It was performed, at the request of the late dowager empress, by the bishop of Rhen, her own chaplain, assisted by the Rev. Thomas Teichmüller, canon of the cathedral.

The coffin stood in the death chamber covered with a long black pall and strewn with white roses. At the foot, with bowed head and slightly in advance of the other mourners, stood Emperor William in the uniform of the Black Hussars, the regiment of the late dowager empress. Just behind him were all the other members of the royal family, except Prince Henry of Prussia. The other mourners, who formed two lines in the rear, included Prince and Princess Primate, Count von Seckendorff, who was the secretary of the emperor, the duke of Cambridge and grand duke of Hesse and a few court officials.

The service was conducted entirely without music. It consisted of a portion of the burial service of the Church of England, the XIX Psalm, a reading from Isaiah I and the benediction. The congregation rendered the responses.

Immediately after its conclusion Emperor William and the empress drove back to Homburg. A few people standing near the Friedrichshagen gate saluted respectfully on their majesties' arrival and departure. The castle still presents the appearance of a state of siege. Hussars are bivouacked in the woods, cavalry pickets and mounted police patrol the roads and a large force of detectives is in evidence about the castle, as well as in the town, scrutinizing all comers.

Count von Walderssee will arrive here Saturday to report personally to the emperor and it is expected that he will attend the service on Sunday.

In consequence of the death of the dowager empress, Emperor William has decided not to invite foreign princes to attend the autumn maneuvers.

One of the most affecting tributes to a simple wreath of white heather and wild flowers, gathered and arranged by themselves, with a sheet of note paper bearing the childish signatures of Emperor William's youngest four children.

The outer coffin, sent from Berlin today, was designed by the deceased herself. It is of oak and lined with satin. The lid bears a gilt imperial crown and is ornamented with roses reproducing the rose of England. Ten heavy bronze and gilt handles adorn the sides.

During the same period the following material was captured or surrendered from the insurgents: Rifles, 15,693; ammunition, 256,345 rounds; revolvers, 588; bolos, 3,516; cannon, 122; cannon ammunition, 19,270 rounds.

Significance of Conditions.

At the date of the present report there was no embodied rebel force in Luzon above the Pasig river. In the department of Visayas all was pacific excepting the island of Samar and in the department of Mindanao and Jolo all the rebels had submitted and the island of Mindanao was in the hands of the United States.

In this connection General MacArthur says:

It is respectfully submitted that the very gratifying conditions herein briefly recapitulated have not been brought entirely by the hand of Providence. Neither must the attitude of the people who have declared for peace be ascribed entirely to the conservative forces as constant factors, the friendly operation of which can be relied upon irrespective of the future of the islands.

General MacArthur says the capture of Aguinaldo may be regarded as the most important single event of the year. Speaking particularly of Aguinaldo, he says that the important immediate results and the remote consequences make it the important event which he characterizes it. He calls it a "unique, isolated military transaction."

The capture dispelled the growing tendency to idealize Aguinaldo as a hero and to surround him with mythical legends of invincibility, which thousands of natives believed to be true and which ultimately would insure success for the rebellion. Aguinaldo was the incarnation of the insurrection. His death would mean the annihilation of the agent which surrounded him while his capture has dispelled a great deal of the fictitious value he had.

General MacArthur reviews the various supply departments of the army and speaks of them in the highest terms. He says: "The co-operation of the navy has been cordial, constant and effective. Many important transactions have been almost entirely dependent upon naval support and assistance."

Favors Crowder's Coinage Plan.

General MacArthur speaks of the great confusion regarding a money medium in the Philippines, precisely the characteristic of the eastern world, and favors the recommendations of Colonel E. H. Crowder, military secretary, for a coinage system to meet the conditions existing in the islands, which is summed up in the following:

1. The American gold standard to be established by the United States.

2. A table of equivalents to be declared by law between Philippine gold money and United States money in all its various forms, including banknotes, on the basis of 2 to 1, that is to say, one United States gold dollar is equivalent to two Philippine gold pesos, as herein prescribed.

3. A subsidiary Philippine coinage, embracing such subdivisions of the gold peso as most convenient, conforming as much as possible to the subsidiary coin of the United States and with an established rate of equivalents as in the case of gold, that is to say, one United States coin is equivalent to two Philippine coins of the same denomination.

4. The establishment of Philippine national banks, precisely the same in all respects as now authorized in the United States, including United States bonds as a basis of circulation.

5. All currency issued under the foregoing systems to have full legal tender status in the Philippine Islands for all public duties and private debts; and the equivalent United States currency and subsidiary coinage, as authorized in the foregoing sections 2 and 3, to have legal tender status in the Philippines to the same extent.

(Continued on Second Page.)

Significance of Conditions.

At the date of the present report there was no embodied rebel force in Luzon above the Pasig river. In the department of Visayas all was pacific excepting the island of Samar and in the department of Mindanao and Jolo all the rebels had submitted and the island of Mindanao was in the hands of the United States.

In this connection General MacArthur says:

It is respectfully submitted that the very gratifying conditions herein briefly recapitulated have not been brought entirely by the hand of Providence. Neither must the attitude of the people who have declared for peace be ascribed entirely to the conservative forces as constant factors, the friendly operation of which can be relied upon irrespective of the future of the islands.

General MacArthur says the capture of Aguinaldo may be regarded as the most important single event of the year. Speaking particularly of Aguinaldo, he says that the important immediate results and the remote consequences make it the important event which he characterizes it. He calls it a "unique, isolated military transaction."

The capture dispelled the growing tendency to idealize Aguinaldo as a hero and to surround him with mythical legends of invincibility, which thousands of natives believed to be true and which ultimately would insure success for the rebellion. Aguinaldo was the incarnation of the insurrection. His death would mean the annihilation of the agent which surrounded him while his capture has dispelled a great deal of the fictitious value he had.

General MacArthur reviews the various supply departments of the army and speaks of them in the highest terms. He says: "The co-operation of the navy has been cordial, constant and effective. Many important transactions have been almost entirely dependent upon naval support and assistance."

Favors Crowder's Coinage Plan.

General MacArthur speaks of the great confusion regarding a money medium in the Philippines, precisely the characteristic of the eastern world, and favors the recommendations of Colonel E. H. Crowder, military secretary, for a coinage system to meet the conditions existing in the islands, which is summed up in the following:

1. The American gold standard to be established by the United States.

2. A table of equivalents to be declared by law between Philippine gold money and United States money in all its various forms, including banknotes, on the basis of 2 to 1, that is to say, one United States gold dollar is equivalent to two Philippine gold pesos, as herein prescribed.

3. A subsidiary Philippine coinage, embracing such subdivisions of the gold peso as most convenient, conforming as much as possible to the subsidiary coin of the United States and with an established rate of equivalents as in the case of gold, that is to say, one United States coin is equivalent to two Philippine coins of the same denomination.

4. The establishment of Philippine national banks, precisely the same in all respects as now authorized in the United States, including United States bonds as a basis of circulation.

5. All currency issued under the foregoing systems to have full legal tender status in the Philippine Islands for all public duties and private debts; and the equivalent United States currency and subsidiary coinage, as authorized in the foregoing sections 2 and 3, to have legal tender status in the Philippines to the same extent.

(Continued on Second Page.)

Significance of Conditions.

At the date of the present report there was no embodied rebel force in Luzon above the Pasig river. In the department of Visayas all was pacific excepting the island of Samar and in the department of Mindanao and Jolo all the rebels had submitted and the island of Mindanao was in the hands of the United States.

In this connection General MacArthur says:

It is respectfully submitted that the very gratifying conditions herein briefly recapitulated have not been brought entirely by the hand of Providence. Neither must the attitude of the people who have declared for peace be ascribed entirely to the conservative forces as constant factors, the friendly operation of which can be relied upon irrespective of the future of the islands.

General MacArthur says the capture of Aguinaldo may be regarded as the most important single event of the year. Speaking particularly of Aguinaldo, he says that the important immediate results and the remote consequences make it the important event which he characterizes it. He calls it a "unique, isolated military transaction."

The capture dispelled the growing tendency to idealize Aguinaldo as a hero and to surround him with mythical legends of invincibility, which thousands of natives believed to be true and which ultimately would insure success for the rebellion. Aguinaldo was the incarnation of the insurrection. His death would mean the annihilation of the agent which surrounded him while his capture has dispelled a great deal of the fictitious value he had.

General MacArthur reviews the various supply departments of the army and speaks of them in the highest terms. He says: "The co-operation of the navy has been cordial, constant and effective. Many important transactions have been almost entirely dependent upon naval support and assistance."

Favors Crowder's Coinage Plan.

General MacArthur speaks of the great confusion regarding a money medium in the Philippines, precisely the characteristic of the eastern world, and favors the recommendations of Colonel E. H. Crowder, military secretary, for a coinage system to meet the conditions existing in the islands, which is summed up in the following:

1. The American gold standard to be established by the United States.

FUNERAL

Empress Dowager, which's Expressed Wishes Are Out at Friedrichshagen.

CRONBERG, Aug. 8.—The funeral service at Friedrichshagen late this afternoon was simple, but impressive. It was performed, at the request of the late dowager empress, by the bishop of Rhen, her own chaplain, assisted by the Rev. Thomas Teichmüller, canon of the cathedral.

The coffin stood in the death chamber covered with a long black pall and strewn with white roses. At the foot, with bowed head and slightly in advance of the other mourners, stood Emperor William in the uniform of the Black Hussars, the regiment of the late dowager empress. Just behind him were all the other members of the royal family, except Prince Henry of Prussia. The other mourners, who formed two lines in the rear, included Prince and Princess Primate, Count von Seckendorff, who was the secretary of the emperor, the duke of Cambridge and grand duke of Hesse and a few court officials.

The service was conducted entirely without music. It consisted of a portion of the burial service of the Church of England, the XIX Psalm, a reading from Isaiah I and the benediction. The congregation rendered the responses.

Immediately after its conclusion Emperor William and the empress drove back to Homburg. A few people standing near the Friedrichshagen gate saluted respectfully on their majesties' arrival and departure. The castle still presents the appearance of a state of siege. Hussars are bivouacked in the woods, cavalry pickets and mounted police patrol the roads and a large force of detectives is in evidence about the castle, as well as in the town, scrutinizing all comers.

Count von Walderssee will arrive here Saturday to report personally to the emperor and it is expected that he will attend the service on Sunday.

In consequence of the death of the dowager empress, Emperor William has decided not to invite foreign princes to attend the autumn maneuvers.

One of the most affecting tributes to a simple wreath of white heather and wild flowers, gathered and arranged by themselves, with a sheet of note paper bearing the childish signatures of Emperor William's youngest four children.

The outer coffin, sent from Berlin today, was designed by the deceased herself. It is of oak and lined with satin. The lid bears a gilt imperial crown and is ornamented with roses reproducing the rose of England. Ten heavy bronze and gilt handles adorn the sides.

During the same period the following material was captured or surrendered from the insurgents: Rifles, 15,693; ammunition, 256,345 rounds; revolvers, 588; bolos, 3,516; cannon, 122; cannon ammunition, 19,270 rounds.

Significance of Conditions.

At the date of the present report there was no embodied rebel force in Luzon above the Pasig river. In the department of Visayas all was pacific excepting the island of Samar and in the department of Mindanao and Jolo all the rebels had submitted and the island of Mindanao was in the hands of the United States.

In this connection General MacArthur says:

It is respectfully submitted that the very gratifying conditions herein briefly recapitulated have not been brought entirely by the hand of Providence. Neither must the attitude of the people who have declared for peace be ascribed entirely to the conservative forces as constant factors, the friendly operation of which can be relied upon irrespective of the future of the islands.

General MacArthur says the capture of Aguinaldo may be regarded as the most important single event of the year. Speaking particularly of Aguinaldo, he says that the important immediate results and the remote consequences make it the important event which he characterizes it. He calls it a "unique, isolated military transaction."

The capture dispelled the growing tendency to idealize Aguinaldo as a hero and to surround him with mythical legends of invincibility, which thousands of natives believed to be true and which ultimately would insure success for the rebellion. Aguinaldo was the incarnation of the insurrection. His death would mean the annihilation of the agent which surrounded him while his capture has dispelled a great deal of the fictitious value he had.

General MacArthur reviews the various supply departments of the army and speaks of them in the highest terms. He says: "The co-operation of the navy has been cordial, constant and effective. Many important transactions have been almost entirely dependent upon naval support and assistance."

Favors Crowder's Coinage Plan.

General MacArthur speaks of the great confusion regarding a money medium in the Philippines, precisely the characteristic of the eastern world, and favors the recommendations of Colonel E. H. Crowder, military secretary, for a coinage system to meet the conditions existing in the islands, which is summed up in the following:

1. The American gold standard to be established by the United States.

2. A table of equivalents to be declared by law between Philippine gold money and United States money in all its various forms, including banknotes, on the basis of 2 to 1, that is to say, one United States gold dollar is equivalent to two Philippine gold pesos, as herein prescribed.

3. A subsidiary Philippine coinage, embracing such subdivisions of the gold peso as most convenient, conforming as much as possible to the subsidiary coin of the United States and with an established rate of equivalents as in the case of gold, that is to say, one United States coin is equivalent to two Philippine coins of the same denomination.

4. The establishment of Philippine national banks, precisely the same in all respects as now authorized in the United States, including United States bonds as a basis of circulation.

5. All currency issued under the foregoing systems to have full legal tender status in the Philippine Islands for all public duties and private debts; and the equivalent United States currency and subsidiary coinage, as authorized in the foregoing sections 2 and 3, to have legal tender status in the Philippines to the same extent.

(Continued on Second Page.)

Significance of Conditions.

At the date of the present report there was no embodied rebel force in Luzon above the Pasig river. In the department of Visayas all was pacific excepting the island of Samar and in the department of Mindanao and Jolo all the rebels had submitted and the island of Mindanao was in the hands of the United States.

In this connection General MacArthur says:

It is respectfully submitted that the very gratifying conditions herein briefly recapitulated have not been brought entirely by the hand of Providence. Neither must the attitude of the people who have declared for peace be ascribed entirely to the conservative forces as constant factors, the friendly operation of which can be relied upon irrespective of the future of the islands.

General MacArthur says the capture of Aguinaldo may be regarded as the most important single event of the year. Speaking particularly of Aguinaldo, he says that the important immediate results and the remote consequences make it the important event which he characterizes it. He calls it a "unique, isolated military transaction."

The capture dispelled the growing tendency to idealize Aguinaldo as a hero and to surround him with mythical legends of invincibility, which thousands of natives believed to be true and which ultimately would insure success for the rebellion. Aguinaldo was the incarnation of the insurrection. His death would mean the annihilation of the agent which surrounded him while his capture has dispelled a great deal of the fictitious value he had.

General MacArthur reviews the various supply departments of the army and speaks of them in the highest terms. He says: "The co-operation of the navy has been cordial, constant and effective. Many important transactions have been almost entirely dependent upon naval support and assistance."

Favors Crowder's Coinage Plan.

General MacArthur speaks of the great confusion regarding a money medium in the Philippines, precisely the characteristic of the eastern world, and favors the recommendations of Colonel E. H. Crowder, military secretary, for a coinage system to meet the conditions existing in the islands, which is summed up in the following:

1. The American gold standard to be established by the United States.

2. A table of equivalents to be declared by law between Philippine gold money and United States money in all its various forms, including banknotes, on the basis of 2 to 1, that is to say, one United States gold dollar is equivalent to two Philippine gold pesos, as herein prescribed.

3. A subsidiary Philippine coinage, embracing such subdivisions of the gold peso as most convenient, conforming as much as possible to the subsidiary coin of the United States and with an established rate of equivalents as in the case of gold, that is to say, one United States coin is equivalent to two Philippine coins of the same denomination.

4. The establishment of Philippine national banks, precisely the same in all respects as now authorized in the United States, including United States bonds as a basis of circulation.

5. All currency issued under the foregoing systems to have full legal tender status in the Philippine Islands for all public duties and private debts; and the equivalent United States currency and subsidiary coinage, as authorized in the foregoing sections 2 and 3, to have legal tender status in the Philippines to the same extent.

(Continued on Second Page.)

Significance of Conditions.

At the date of the present report there was no embodied rebel force in Luzon above the Pasig river. In the department of Visayas all was pacific excepting the island of Samar and in the department of Mindanao and Jolo all the rebels had submitted and the island of Mindanao was in the hands of the United States.

In this connection General MacArthur says:

It is respectfully submitted that the very gratifying conditions herein briefly recapitulated have not been brought entirely by the hand of Providence. Neither must the attitude of the people who have declared for peace be ascribed entirely to the conservative forces as constant factors, the friendly operation of which can be relied upon irrespective of the future of the islands.

General MacArthur says the capture of Aguinaldo may be regarded as the most important single event of the year. Speaking particularly of Aguinaldo, he says that the important immediate results and the remote consequences make it the important event which he characterizes it. He calls it a "unique, isolated military transaction."

The capture dispelled the growing tendency to idealize Aguinaldo as a hero and to surround him with mythical legends of invincibility, which thousands of natives believed to be true and which ultimately would insure success for the rebellion. Aguinaldo was the incarnation of the insurrection. His death would mean the annihilation of the agent which surrounded him while his capture has dispelled a great deal of the fictitious value he had.

General MacArthur reviews the various supply departments of the army and speaks of them in the highest terms. He says: "The co-operation of the navy has been cordial, constant and effective. Many important transactions have been almost entirely dependent upon naval support and assistance."

Favors Crowder's Coinage Plan.

General MacArthur speaks of the great confusion regarding a money medium in the Philippines, precisely the characteristic of the eastern world, and favors the recommendations of Colonel E. H. Crowder, military secretary, for a coinage system to meet the conditions existing in the islands, which is summed up in the following:

1. The American gold standard to be established by the United States.

FUNERAL

Empress Dowager, which's Expressed Wishes Are Out at Friedrichshagen.

CRONBERG, Aug. 8.—The funeral service at Friedrichshagen late this afternoon was simple, but impressive. It was performed, at the request of the late dowager empress, by the bishop of Rhen, her own chaplain, assisted by the Rev. Thomas Teichmüller, canon of the cathedral.

The coffin stood in the death chamber covered with a long black pall and strewn with white roses. At the foot, with bowed head and slightly in advance of the other mourners, stood Emperor William in the uniform of the Black Hussars, the regiment of the late dowager empress. Just behind him were all the other members of the royal family, except Prince Henry of Prussia. The other mourners, who formed two lines in the rear, included Prince and Princess Primate, Count von Seckendorff, who was the secretary of the emperor, the duke of Cambridge and grand duke of Hesse and a few court officials.

The service was conducted entirely without music. It consisted of a portion of the burial service of the Church of England, the XIX Psalm, a reading from Isaiah I and the benediction. The congregation rendered the responses.

Immediately after its conclusion Emperor William and the empress drove back to Homburg. A few people standing near the Friedrichshagen gate saluted respectfully on their majesties' arrival and departure. The castle still presents the appearance of a state of siege. Hussars are bivouacked in the woods, cavalry pickets and mounted police patrol the roads and a large force of detectives is in evidence about the castle, as well as in the town, scrutinizing all comers.

Count von Walderssee will arrive here Saturday to report personally to the emperor and it is expected that he will attend the service on Sunday.

In consequence of the death of the dowager empress, Emperor William has decided not to invite foreign princes to attend the autumn maneuvers.

One of the most affecting tributes to a simple wreath of white heather and wild flowers, gathered and arranged by themselves, with a sheet of note paper bearing the childish signatures of Emperor William's youngest four children.

The outer coffin, sent from Berlin today, was designed by the deceased herself. It is of oak and lined with satin. The lid bears a gilt imperial crown and is ornamented with roses reproducing the rose of England. Ten heavy bronze and gilt handles adorn the sides.

During the same period the following material was captured or surrendered from the insurgents: Rifles, 15,693; ammunition, 256,345 rounds; revolvers, 588; bolos, 3,516; cannon, 122; cannon ammunition, 19,270 rounds.

Significance of Conditions.

At the date of the present report there was no embodied rebel force in Luzon above the Pasig river. In the department of Visayas all was pacific excepting the island of Samar and in the department of Mindanao and Jolo all the rebels had submitted and the island of Mindanao was in the hands of the United States.

In this connection General MacArthur says:

It is respectfully submitted that the very gratifying conditions herein briefly recapitulated have not been brought entirely by the hand of Providence. Neither must the attitude of the people who have declared for peace be ascribed entirely to the conservative forces as constant factors, the friendly operation of which can be relied upon irrespective of the future of the islands.

General MacArthur says the capture of Aguinaldo may be regarded as the most important single event of the year. Speaking particularly of Aguinaldo, he says that the important immediate results and the remote consequences make it the important event which he characterizes it. He calls it a "unique, isolated military transaction."

The capture dispelled the growing tendency to idealize Aguinaldo as a hero and to surround him with mythical legends of invincibility, which thousands of natives believed to be true and which ultimately would insure success for the rebellion. Aguinaldo was the incarnation of the insurrection. His death would mean the annihilation of the agent which surrounded him while his capture has dispelled a great deal of the fictitious value he had.

General MacArthur reviews the various supply departments of the army and speaks of them in the highest terms. He says: "The co-operation of the navy has been cordial, constant and effective. Many important transactions have been almost entirely dependent upon naval support and assistance."

Favors Crowder's Coinage Plan.

General MacArthur speaks of the great confusion regarding a money medium in the Philippines, precisely the characteristic of the eastern world, and favors the recommendations of Colonel E. H. Crowder, military secretary, for a coinage system to meet the conditions existing in the islands, which is summed up in the following:

1. The American gold standard to be established by the United States.

2. A table of equivalents to be declared by law between Philippine gold money and United States money in all its various forms, including banknotes, on the basis of 2 to 1, that is to say, one United States gold dollar is equivalent to two Philippine gold pesos, as herein prescribed.

3. A subsidiary Philippine coinage, embracing such subdivisions of the gold peso as most convenient, conforming as much as possible to the subsidiary coin of the United States and with an established rate of equivalents as in the case of gold, that is to say, one United States coin is equivalent to two Philippine coins of the same denomination.

4. The establishment of Philippine national banks, precisely the same in all respects as now authorized in the United States, including United States bonds as a basis of circulation.

5. All currency issued under the foregoing systems to have full legal tender status in the Philippine Islands for all public duties and private debts; and the equivalent United States currency and subsidiary coinage, as authorized in the foregoing sections 2 and 3, to have legal tender status in the Philippines to the same extent.

(Continued on Second Page.)

Significance of Conditions.

At the date of the present report there was no embodied rebel force in Luzon above the Pasig river. In the department of Visayas all was pacific excepting the island of Samar and in the department of Mindanao and Jolo all the rebels had submitted and the island of Mindanao was in the hands of the United States.

In this connection General MacArthur says: